effect, superseding the old "board" prices, the food administration announced today.

The new schedule fixes a fair price at the milling point on the basis of cost of freight to add, when the flour is handled in small quantities, the cost of freight and handling is increased. On bulk shipments and involving, the food administration has ruled that the official schedule of prices be printed so that the purchaser will know it is being overcharged. The schedule of prices follows:

PETITION TO THE SENATE FOR A SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT

PETITION to the Senate to Support the President of the United States and Pass the Suffrage Amendment in Accordance with the Request of the President of the United States.

TO THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES:
The President says that the Suffrage Amendment should be passed as a just recognition of the work American women have done for the support of the war. We agree with the President.
The President says that this Suffrage Amendment is a necessary war measure; that it will help to win the war. Senators, that alone is surely reason enough why you should vote for the amendment.
Senators, your petitioners urge you to stand by the President and to heed his advice, and to vote for the Suffrage Amendment. It is a war measure that will help us to win victory sooner and as an act of high justice to the patriotic women of the United States.

The Constitution and Child Labor

Those That Wrote the Constitution Didn't Intend, and the People That Control the Constitution DON'T Intend, That Child Labor Disgrace This Country

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

Money is made in many ways.

Forests are ground into wood pulp, pulp rolled out into paper. You hold some of it in your hand now. The paper makers get rich. Iron ore is put through a furnace of fire, rolled and hammered into steel—the Steel Trust gets rich.

Other ores treated with fire, chemicals, mercury, yield gold, silver, copper, and men get rich.

Children are passed through the mills, driven to work at the mines' breakers, stand with nervous, trembling bodies, keeping pace with steam driven machinery in cotton mill, box factory or sweatshop. Their youth, strength, life, are changed into dividends, as the forest wood is ground into white paper—AND MEN GET RICH.

The President asked, people urged, Congress legislated and child labor was forbidden. The President signed the bill that forbade transporting products of child labor by Interstate Commerce. That was all the nation could do, the States reserving, in their original agreement of union, the right to decide life or death, misery or happy health for their own children.

The Supreme Court of the United States decides that Congress, the President and the people had no constitutional right to pass a law thus protecting children.

The decision, expressing the sincere legal conviction of the judges concurring, was based on technical grounds. Not one of the judges, we suppose, would say that child labor is anything but a crime.

Four members of the Supreme Court, Justices Brandeis, Holmes, McKenna and Clark, held that the law was constitutional. They were overruled.

Whereas much learned judges as Justices White, Day, McReynolds, Vandevanter and Pitney disagree with a Supreme Court decision, the unlearned citizen, while respecting the binding force of the majority opinion, may also disagree.

Of one thing you may be sure. The people will pass a law protecting the children such as will pass the Supreme Court and not offend the Constitution. OR THEY WILL CHANGE THE CONSTITUTION AND MAKE IT DEFEND THE CHILDREN.

We are sending millions of our men to France, where many will die to defend the truth that all men and women should be free. We are spending tens of billions to punish the Prussians for killing children in Belgium.

And we are told that the Constitution which gives us power to sacrifice our billions and our men in the cause of justice for children in Europe FORBIDS US TO PASS LAWS TO PROTECT FROM SLOW, PAINFUL DEATH AND UNHAPPY STUNTED CHILDHOOD THE CHILDREN OF OUR OWN COUNTRY. Is not that interesting?

Progress is slow, particularly where it finds the American dollar mark blocking the path. At the cost of a few lives and a few millions we were able to convince England that white men had a right to freedom and self government in this country.

We had to sacrifice infinitely more in life and money to establish the right of freedom for black men.

For black men were PROPERTY. The dollar mark stood in the way.

The lives of children in mills, mines and factories are also property. Again the dollar mark blocks the way of progress. Individual States are upheld in the right to say: "If I prefer industrial prosperity to the welfare of my children that is my business."

It is historically interesting to observe that the decision in favor of child slavery comes, undoubtedly against its will, from the Supreme Court that, obedient to its convictions, gave decisions for upholding black slavery, and said to the white man in the North: "You cannot free the slave, and if you find him in your land you must return him to his owner."

That caused the Civil War.

Luckily, as the power of public opinion grows, and enlightened men like President Wilson are put in office, and other enlightened men sent to the Supreme Court, it becomes possible to free the slave children peaceably and legally.

The very judges whose conscience compels them to decide a Constitutional point in favor of child slavery would be the first in private conversation to tell legislators how the thing may be done, the children set free, without offense to a Constitution established to govern a country devoted to freedom's cause.

Profits or no profits, property or no property, in spite of the dollar mark that blocks the way, and in spite of any "Constitutional objection," the nation that sacrifices men and billions to protect the children of Belgium will find a way to protect the children of America.

DON'T OBTAIN COAL HOLES

Are you one of the smart fellows who won't listen to government advice on the coal situation? Is "they can't tell you" the drift of your speech?

If you can see an inch from your nose, be wise and put in your order. You are just as much a free man by following this advice as you would be to ignore it.

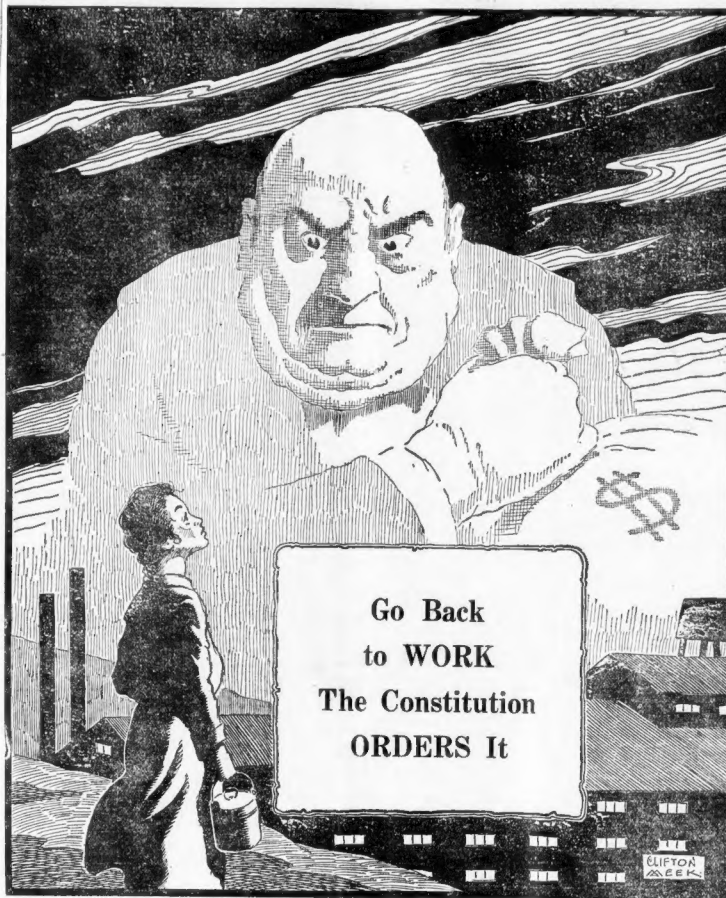

No one is compelling you, you understand, either way, but you will find it more conducive to peace of mind, when the long, cold winter comes, to be sure that you did your part to make your family comfortable. It behooves us as loyal Americans to stand by our government's advice.

The government has a reason back of its advice.

Do your part.

All hands, all together and NOW.

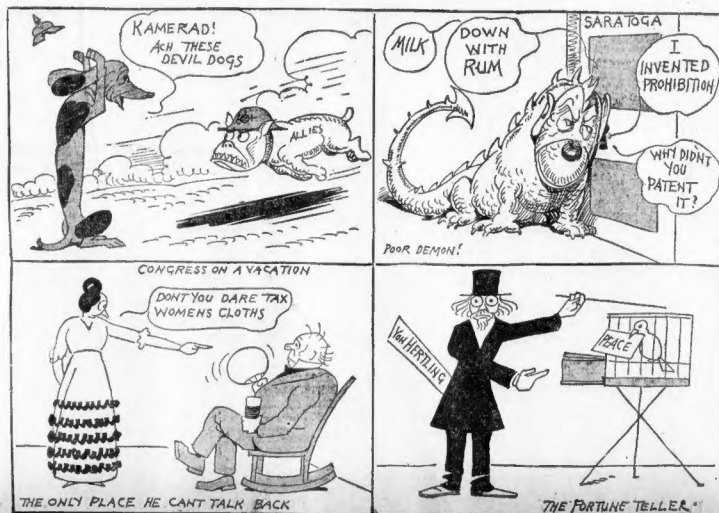

"You Still Belong to Me"

So says the child labor exploiter to his victim—and for the moment he tells the truth.

The Supreme Court (part of it) decides that the law defending children from their exploiters violates the Constitution. Luckily THE PEOPLE control the Constitution. They will find a way to end child labor—as they found a way to end human slavery—although at one time they were told that the Constitution would not permit any interference with that—(See Editorial).

ADVICE FOR GIRLS IN FACTORIES AND MILLS

By Winifred Black

SHE'S working downtown in a factory, and she's sixteen years old, and she loves the work, and enjoys the fun of having her own money to spend, and it helps out a good deal at home, too, since her two brothers have gone to war—but, oh! what shall she do about the factory girls?

They're so mean and so jealous, so spiteful, and so ignorant, and so impudent, and so inquisitive, and so heinous, and she simply hates them and won't I please write an article about factory girls, and tell them just what I think of them, and get it off my—I mean off of her mind.

GIRLS ARE ALIKE

No, Sadie, I will not write an article about factory girls. I can't. I never worked in a factory.

But—whisper—I've been a girl myself, and I'll tell you something about girls, Sadie.

The first thing I'll tell you is this:

There really isn't very much difference between girls, when you come right down to it.

Chorus girls and society girls, shop girls and business girls, boarding school girls and home girls are all very much alike, and that means that it all depends on the girl.

I know chorus girls who are vulgar and coarse, and cruel and bitter tongued, and I know chorus girls who are kind and gentle, and sweet and generous.

I know society girls who are mean and suspicious, and envious and small-minded, and I know society girls who are tolerant and wise, and good-hearted and fine.

I know girls in offices who are as bright as a dollar, as pretty as a picture and as good as gold. And sitting right alongside of them in the same office are girls who are ugly and stupid, and ill-tempered and spiteful.

You don't change human nature by changing the environment, Sadie. It took me a long time to learn this, and I'm giving you this little piece of experience just for friendship sake.

If you left your work in the factory where you're learning so much, and having so much fun on your own money, and thinking how you are helping out at home, you would find exactly the same kind of girls right next to you wherever you worked.

It's the way they are—and that isn't in the least the fault of the factory.

Do you know what I'd do if I were you, Sadie? I can tell you. Let you that you are a girl of individuality and of character—now, you go right to work and make a different atmosphere in that factory. Don't cry, and don't be hurt when the girls say mean things to you. They think you feel above them, just a wee little bit. Well, stop that—you're all just human beings, you know, and if you tell and broke your foot you couldn't walk a bit farther on it than one of those girls who hate so could walk if she broke her foot, and perhaps you wouldn't be as brave as she would be.

Don't Appear Superior

How do you know what troubles these girls have at home, and what they are trying to do? Stop looking them, stop looking at them with alien critical eyes—you needn't preach, you needn't say a word, just be your own honest, kindly, good-humored, gentle, refined self. And the first thing you know when they see that you don't feel above them, and that you aren't trying to make them over to suit your ideas, those girls will be doing their hair like yours, and walking like you, and pronouncing their words as much like you as they can manage.

Then you'll be glad that you stayed at the factory and won your own place in your own world without giving up a single thing it was right for you to have.

Try this plan, Sadie, and let us know how it works, won't you?

DOES TRUE FRIENDSHIP EXIST IN WOMEN?

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

"Dear Madam—As a reader of your column, I would like to ask your opinion. Do you believe that true friendship exists among women?"

"I have few friends, because most of the girls I went to school with have now grown up and turned to frivolity, and the others are in a position where they can afford things which I cannot, and, truthfully speaking, about which I do not care—such as lots of clothes, etc. I am satisfied with having plain things and only those which I need."

"There is one girl I know and esteem very highly, but another girl of the same age as ourselves—she is not yet twenty-one—is more of a coquette than I would care to be with, as I dislike any form of coquetry. Several times lately when the three of us had an appointment, the other two have gone away without saying a word to me, and when I would call for them I would find that they had gone without leaving even a message. This makes me very unhappy, and I often think I will never have faith in friendship again."

"I have no boy friends, although I would like to meet some nice young men, but I do not have the opportunity, and I do not suppose they are any truer in their friendships than girls."

"Trusting you will tell me what you think on this subject."

I am, respectfully, L. E."

YOU poor child! If I were only a fairy godmother how gladly would I appear before you, touch a pumpkin with my magic wand, turn it into a coach and whisk you off to the ball to dance with the prince. You are like a pendulum which has swung too far in one direction. You need all the amusement and recreation you can get.

The very best advice I can give you is to quote Professor William James to you, only I can't do it accurately, because I haven't the book at hand. But, anyway, he said something somewhere about everyone needing a moral vacation now and then. No one can be fruitfully good all the time without becoming a tiresome prig, and you surely don't want to be that.

Frivolity's Use

And don't ignore frivolity too much. It's the heaven of life. "A little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men."—I may say especially by the wisest men. Their fondness for nonsense is usually in proportion to their wisdom. Why, you are only twenty-one!

And twenty-one was never intended to be staid. Youth turns naturally to laughter, to nonsense and frivolity and prattling. And because you are inclined to frown on these things is probably the reason that your friends of the same age as yourself break their engagements with you.

Do you really mean to say that you are content with "plain things and only those which you need"? I do not say, of course, that you are wilfully deceiving me, but I warn if you are not unyieldingly deceiving yourself. It is not in the heart of woman to be insensible to the lure of pretty clothes.

Subject of Pity

And why scorn pity? A girl told me yesterday that she considered it wrong to pity. She thought it unfair to men. But so far as I could see, her sacrifice was unappreciated. Most men like the fun of stalking their bright goddess; so why deprive them of it? No one wants a perfectly motionless courtship any more than he wants to eat cold rice pudding all the time. If you can't indulge in a few caprices now and then, what's the use of being twenty-one?

My dear girl, you are more to be pitied than blamed, if you have never had any silly seasons. I know that I speak with the universal voice when I say that anyone who waits then can have periods of serious thought or hard study or conscientious endeavor. But rubrics couldn't buy my silly seasons.
